VOLUNTEER HELPERS.

It is impossible to mention by name all who have helped us in different ways. The following have kindly undertaken regular work in the coming season of 1891-2 :—

Mr. BELLEROCHE, Blackheath.
Mr. W. BOX, St. John's.
Mr. J. CLAPHAM, Crouch End.
Mr. T. COOTE, Kensington.
Mr. W. H. DALTON, Woodford.
Mr. LEAR, Canning Town.
Mr. A. K. MAYNARD (Resident).
Mr. E. T. R. MURRAY, Blackfriars.
Mr. W. RUSBRIDGE, Canning Town.
Mr. F. TILLYARD, M.A., Plaistow.
Mr. C. E. TROUP, M.A., London, W.
Mr. F. W. TROUP, A.R.I.B.A., London, W.
Mr. J. J. VERNON, Stroud Green.
Mr. S. B. VERNON, Stroud Green.
Mr. B. C. WAINWRIGHT, Finchley.
Mr. W. WHEELER, Stoke Newington.

A rough sketch-map is appended (p. 16) showing the district and its position relative to the East End generally. Friends will notice that Fenchurch Street and Liverpool Street are the Stations of departure for Canning Town, which is reached in about twenty minutes. It is sometimes more convenient for those living in North London to go viâ Dalston and Poplar, and thence take the 'bus.

First Annual Report.

IN presenting our first Annual Report it may be convenient to recapitulate briefly the chief points concerning its origin and purpose. Mansfield House is one of the more recent embodiments of the University Settlement idea, namely, that men who have had the advantages of a University education and training should share them with those less fortunate than themselves by settling in some working-class district, and living in the very midst of the people. Its special characteristics are that it originated among a number of the students at Mansfield College, Oxford, who had spent short periods with Mr. F. W. Newland, M.A., minister of Canning Town Congregational Church, in investigating the conditions of East End life, and that it is distinctly religious in its central purpose. At the same time it is thoroughly unsectarian, and in its practical working seeks to touch with helping hands all sides of life.

The object of the present Report is to give, as clearly and succinctly as may be, an account of what has been done in the first year of actual work, and of what we are looking forward to in the immediate future. Much has been done that can be put on record, much more, we hope, that can only be appreciated by those who have felt its subtler influences upon the life of the district. Yet we trust that the statement here given will make it evident to our supporters that the growth has been of no fungus character merely, but rather an organic development, controlled by a definite idea and purpose as its internal motive force, and conditioned as regards its outward form by the special needs and circumstances of the surrounding district.

WORK DONE.

The lack of central premises has greatly hampered us, yet much has been done in many ways, both to better the conditions of life for those with whom we have established relations, and to make them in themselves abler to cope with those conditions. The Warden, Mr. PERCY ALDEN, M.A., has been actively engaged in organising the whole, assisted by

Mr. NEWLAND and other helpers. The channels of influence may best be described under three heads, arranged in an ascending order of importance.

(a) EDUCATIONAL.

Quite a miniature University of over 200 students has been instituted, tutored by a body of earnest volunteers. Those whose attainments were of the lowest have been instructed in the three R's; French, German and Shorthand have improved the qualifications of those who seek success in business; English Literature and Harmony have represented "culture."

Working in connection with a local committee, Mr. ALDEN, as secretary, secured Professor LEWES for a short course of People's Lectures before Christmas, and Dr. FISON for a full University Extension course on Electricity in the New Year. These lectures were attended by over 150 students.

Great success has also attended the Technical Classes for Lads. The West Ham School Board lent and fitted up an excellent workshop for this purpose, and there the boys were initiated into the crafts of Wood-carving, Carpentry, Venetian Bent-iron Work, and Bamboo Work, as well as taught Drawing and Design.

(b) SOCIAL.

Before the Mansfield men came, Children's Dinners and Happy Evenings for the People had been organised by Mr. NEWLAND. These have received assistance, and the following agencies have been added—

The Sick Benefit Society provides insurance against illness. Over 140 members joined this, and the year, so far, has been most prosperous.

The Penny Bank encourages Thrift among those who are not equal to opening an account with the Post Office.

Cricket and Football Clubs have given the younger men opportunities for sociable and healthful recreation.

Perhaps the most useful development of all under this head is the Poor Man's Friend and Lawyer, or Mutual Aid Society. A fully qualified barrister (Mr. F. Tillyard, M.A.) sits weekly to give free legal advice to poor men and women in difficulties. He is assisted by a committee, who investigate the various cases, and give practical help to their satisfactory settlement. In this way much useless litigation is avoided, and where it is necessary to invoke the law the best mode of procedure is indicated. Cases of cruelty to women and children receive especial attention, and it is sometimes found possible to transplant those who are left destitute to places where they can support themselves and children in undisturbed industry.

Emigration is also facilitated by this committee for those who are fit, and correct information gathered as to the best places, seasons of departure, &c. Several persons have, after a period of testing as to power of work and steadiness, been helped to find a better field of labour abroad.

Sanitation of houses, &c., forms another important branch of enquiry and advice. There is room for more to be done in this department.

As there is no Charity Organisation Society in the district, there are always a number of cases on hand for investigation, and, where desirable, relief. Holidays in the country have been arranged for pale-cheeked children, who have been greatly benefited by the change. The funds necessary for these latter uses are raised independently.

Although the Club, which is expected to prove the backbone of our Social Work, could not be formed in the past year from want of premises, much has been accomplished of a most encouraging nature, and good foundations have been laid on which to build in the coming season.

(c) RELIGIOUS.

This is of course the department of activity where the spirit that animates the whole is more specially evident. The work, as has been said, is essentially non-sectarian, and care is taken not to trespass on the ordinary hours of worship. The workers of Mansfield House being in close connection with the Canning Town Congregational Church are often able to take part in the services there and elsewhere.

From week to week the Pleasant Sunday Afternoon for Men has been held, and from week to week the numbers have grown, until about 300 members have been enrolled.

"Brief, Bright, Brotherly," is the motto, and the constant aim is amply to deserve the title. Through this gathering many men have come to understand better what Christianity really is, who seldom entered places of worship before.

The Sunday Morning Adult School is a much younger institution, but full of hopeful vigour. Instruction in the simpler branches of education is there given, followed by Bible Study. One or two bolder spirits are struggling to understand the original Greek of the New Testament.

Brotherliness is the note of all the work and teaching, the perfect equality of men in those personal and spiritual relations that are, or ought to be, independent of wealth, capacity, or social rank. There are many happy signs that this brotherliness is a growing reality, and the countless opportunities of personal intercourse afforded by all the agencies give scope for yet greater growth. It is only by realising their common brotherhood that men can be prepared for fully understanding that Fatherhood of God which was revealed to the world through Christ.

OUR PRESENT POSITION.

We begin the second year with the advantage of a past behind us, in which much experience has been gained and many beginnings made of institutions that now only need to grow. Our previously scattered energies will this season be brought to a focus at the central premises of the Settlement. There the Club will have its habitation, classes will be held, and the different Societies will meet. At the back a hall capable of holding nearly 500 people has been built, which will be utilised for lectures, concerts, discussions, &c. The whole has been under the able direction of the honorary architect, Mr. F. W. TROUP, A.R.I.B.A.

The executive power has been strengthened by the association of Mr. W. REASON, M.A., with Mr. ALDEN in the work of the Settlement. Mr. REASON has also undertaken the duties of Financial Secretary.

The Social Work will be greatly developed in the coming year. Connected with the Men's Club will be a Gymnasium, Chess, Athletic, and Football Clubs, &c. A great effort will be made to develope a successful Social Science Club, by which economical and social problems may be studied with a view to wise action in public affairs. In connection with this Club there will be a library of books dealing especially with social questions.

For the Men's Club much is needed in the way of literature (especially periodicals) and games, such as chess, draughts, &c. Friends can help us a great deal by sending us their magazines when read, or better still, by ordering their booksellers to send direct. Great attention will be paid to the Temperance Refreshment Bar, that the food and drink supplied may be of good quality, cheap, and well served.

As soon as possible a Youths' Institute for those under eighteen will be formed in the Swanscombe Street Schoolroom, just enlarged for this and other purposes. As this will be used by the Mansfield Settlement, a portion of the expense has been undertaken by the Committee.

The Orchestral Society is fast developing into a flourishing institution; its members practise weekly, under the direction of an able bandmaster. They are expected to do a great deal in providing good instrumental music at our meetings, and whenever occasion serves.

The Educational Programme will be continued from last year, with important additions. We retain most of our old teachers, and have added others. After Christmas the University Extension Lectures will be resumed, J. D. McClure, Esq., M.A., Head Master of Mill Hill School, delivering a course on Astronomy. The Technical Classes have been formed into a separate Institute, under the direction of Mr. A. K. Maynard, who is holding a special class in Slöjd carpentry for teachers.

A Pleasant Sunday Evening for Children is to be started immediately for those who escape the influence of the Sunday School. Bright music, interesting talks and helpful teaching will, it is hoped, lead to better things for many of the neglected little ones. It is intended to have a Lantern Lesson once a month.

Sunday evening meetings for Discussions, Social Conferences, &c., interspersed with Lectures, will be held in the Hall.

It is a matter of great gratification that the large field of work that we cannot enter upon, viz., that among the women of the district, is not to be neglected. A strong Committee has been formed for the establishment of a Ladies' Settlement, and a Lady Superintendent secured. We hope to welcome the sister institution in the New Year; though independent in organization, the two movements will be practically one in work and sympathy, each in its special field supplementing the labours of the other. More detailed information can be given to those who desire to aid this effort upon application.

To give as comprehensive a view as possible of the work done in connection with Mansfield House, an ordinary week's time-table is appended. It will be seen that such a list implies the expenditure of much time and thought, as well as money.

APPEAL.

We are very grateful for the help that has been afforded us in the year that is gone, and are confident that a generous response will be given to our appeal, that with extending work that help may also be extended. We still require £1500 to clear our Building Fund, and earnestly ask that friends will help us to wipe this off at once, as interest must of course be paid on all outstanding sums.

For satisfactory maintenance we need at least £800 yearly; it is in the highest degree desirable that our source of income should be practically reliable, and to this end we invite all who can do so to become annual subscribers. Another thing we would urge is, that work of this nature cannot but grow if it is to produce satisfactory results. As a matter of fact we already find our promises far too small; we trust, therefore, that the interest of our supporters will grow with it, and adequately provide the necessary sinews of war. There is scope for the work we are doing multiplied many times; work that does not dissipate money in idle charity, but is productive of good in the lives of those influenced, and through them of countless others; while at the same time it affords an invaluable training for those whose lives are devoted to the ministry of the Gospel of Jesus Christ.
